Dear Mr. Bennet

Nick received your papers yesterday. I am writing this letter to ask you to leave Nick alone. After what you and your people ^{did} done to him, I don't blame him for cursing at you. I thought this was all over with, but as long as you're commenting on how Nick talks or writes. I believe it is his right, given to him by the First Amendment to the Constitution. You talk about Nick posting your mother's telephone on the internet. You are angry because he threatened. How would you feel if I posted your and your friends phone number, one by one? Did you ever say don't post it? I don't believe you did. Did you ever think what would happen if it was posted?

How about some of these pictures that your friends posted about Nick? Do you think this is right? Did you even try to stop them? I don't believe you did. Do you know someone turned my phone number to a school in Georgia, a funeral home in Florida, and a Spiritualist in Arizona? Let alone the all the little packages I turned over to the postmaster. You are a school teacher, these are your friends. You should be able to tell them what's right and what's wrong. You people have to put me through hell. Won't this ever stop? Why don't you write your own books, and leave Nick's alone?

If you leave him alone, he will leave you alone. Please stop now; the next best thing so far if you don't like a person stay away from him.

SIGNED,

Shirley C. Pacione

I must add most of these pictures are turned in to the police & District Attorney's Office. Your friends posted my phone number on the internet. Don't you think it's time to stop.
